

Music Lessons & Instrument Repairs

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC LESSONS – We cannot possibly overstate the value of band and orchestra students taking private lessons on their instruments. Aside from daily individual practice, obviously, there really is no other single way for a musician to improve their skills than to take individual lessons with a professional. These can be a simple half-hour a week, or an hour twice a month or (ideally) an hour a week. The band and orchestra experience is a full group (ensemble) experience and does not contribute to individual growth of each player nearly as fast as private lessons can. Our weekly master classes are like a group lesson, but individuals gain more from one-on-one attention. “Do you take private lessons on your instrument?” is one of the very first questions we ask students in any of our auditions; followed by, “How often?” and “With whom?” The following is a list of program-approved lessons teachers. Certainly there are other teachers in our area and many are fine people and well-qualified. THESE folks however have our highest endorsement. We will continue to add to and amend this list as best we can. GO FOR IT!
